

presents the following training opportunity

Leading Volunteers Through Change

Facilitated by Sue Kobar, a leader in the volunteer management field...

WORKSHOP: We are living amid constant organisational change and while not all change is negative the word does conjure up all sorts of images in our mind. This workshop is designed to help leaders of volunteers define the process of change, recognise their own response and be able to effectively disseminate information to volunteers positively and promptly. Participants will develop a framework for managing and communicating with volunteers that includes understanding that different leadership and communication styles encompass a collection of traits and characteristics.

FACILITATOR: Sue Kobar is the Manager of Volunteering for IHC New Zealand and has an extensive background in volunteer leadership and programme management. Sue is passionate about volunteerism and is a national trainer...
